- When and where it happened?
- How long you were in the traffic jam?
- What you did while waiting?
- Explain how you felt when you were in that traffic jam?

Describe a time when you were stuck in a traffic jam

Describe a time when you were stuck in a traffic jam cue card answer:

I live in the countryside and most of the time, there is not much traffic on the roads. However, the only time we face traffic jams is when there is some kind of cultural festival or a political rally. And most of the time, these are announced beforehand so I rarely get stuck in traffic jams.

However, last week I had gone to Patiala to buy some outfits for my sister's wedding. During our arrival, we met with no such traffic. But on the way back, the highway was shut down as there had been a union strike and PRTC employees blocked the road. This being a primary pathway gradually became a huge jam. Moreover, it was a narrow road which aggravated the traffic problem.

The traffic police tried to disperse the crowd but to no avail. We were stuck in the jam for at least 4 to 5 hours. At first, we thought things were under control and the blockade would be removed. Instead, our car barely moved a few hundred metres in 30 minutes, my elder brother went out of the car to gauge the situation.

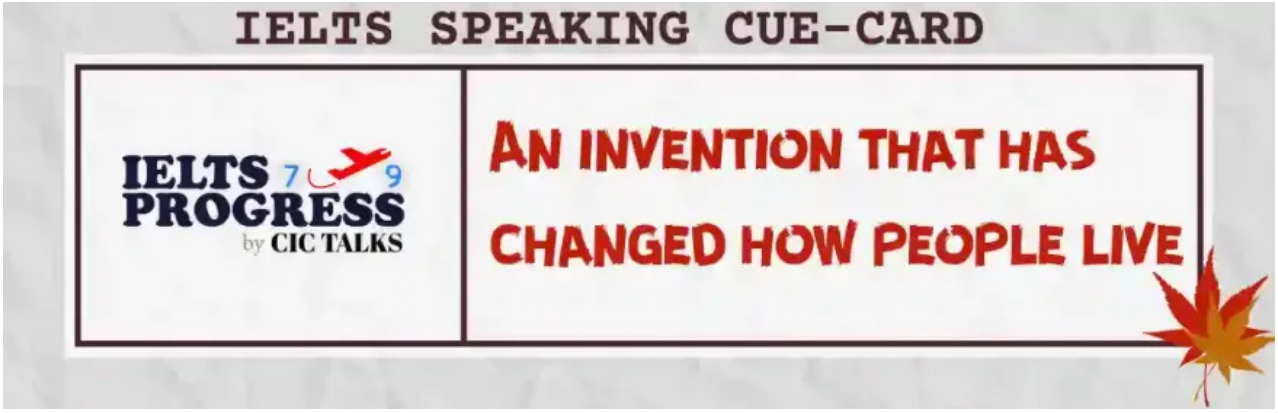

We couldn't really back up as it was jam-packed. So, we spent the time listening to music. Honestly, I think it's a sheer government failure, because the unions had made the road blockade announcement a week before. The government was in deep slumber.

Anyway, the day when I was stuck in a traffic jam ended on a happy note as we reached home late. My mother prepared my favourite meals that made me relaxed.

Science has been a part and parcel of our life. Nearly everything in life revolves around scientific inventions one way or the other. However, today I would like to talk about the invention, which has completely changed how people live today.

The invention I'm talking about is the Internet. It has revolutionised the way we communicate nowadays. We can talk to anyone, anytime and from anywhere. Nothing seems too far. Also, it is much easier to remain in contact with our dear ones because of the internet. Life has become fast-paced as communication has become instantaneous.

However, Internet's impact is not only limited to just communication. It has played a key role in the way we shop, the way we learn and the way we search for health treatments. We can access every luxury while sitting in the comforts of our home.

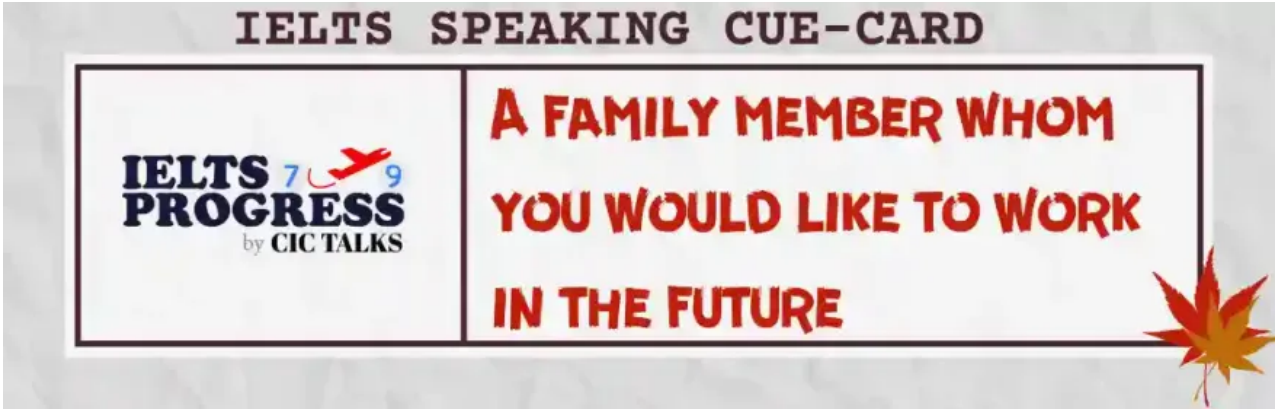

On the other hand, there have also been a few downsides to this invention. Internet has in some ways produced hatred in society. People post fake news on the internet which may give rise to communal violence.

Overall, I think the Internet as an invention has changed the whole life around us.

My brother runs a machine tool manufacturing company named Robin Tools on the outskirts of my hometown. So today, I'd happily describe what it would like to be working with him in the future.

I have seen him grow from a small local firm with a handful of employees to a fairly large company with about 150+ employees. He is the kind of family member who always takes responsibility upfront. That's the reason why he succeeded in such a short span of time.

I would like to pursue my 'Master of Business Administration' degree in Canada and then I'll join him to expand our business. To be honest, I have never worked with him so far, but have seen him work many times. With different skills in hand we both would prove to be an asset to the company.

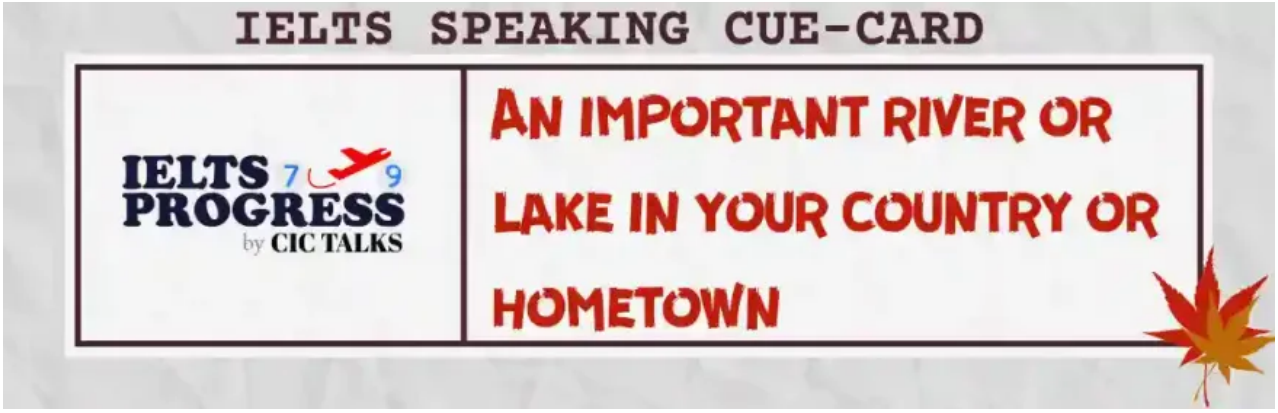

Although he has so many employees, he himself indulges in almost every job no matter big or small. He looks after their needs very well. He is very quality conscious and never compromises on the company ethics.

India is a land of rivers and lakes. There are hundreds of water bodies which are extremely important in my country. One important river that I would like to talk about today here is the river Ganges or the Ganga, as we popularly call it.

I still remember when I learnt about it. I was in 5th standard. There was a lectire about major Indian rivers in the Geography class. But I've gained most of the knowledge about river Ganga in the later years.

Now I can confidently say that I know every little fact about this river. For instance, it emerges out of the Himalayas from the glaciers and falls into the Bay of Bengal. The Ganges is also called a perennial river as the water is available throughout the year.

It has two sources of water – the glaciers in the Himalayas and the rain that falls during the monsoon season. The river is impressive for many reasons, the first being its length. It is one of the longest rivers in the world.

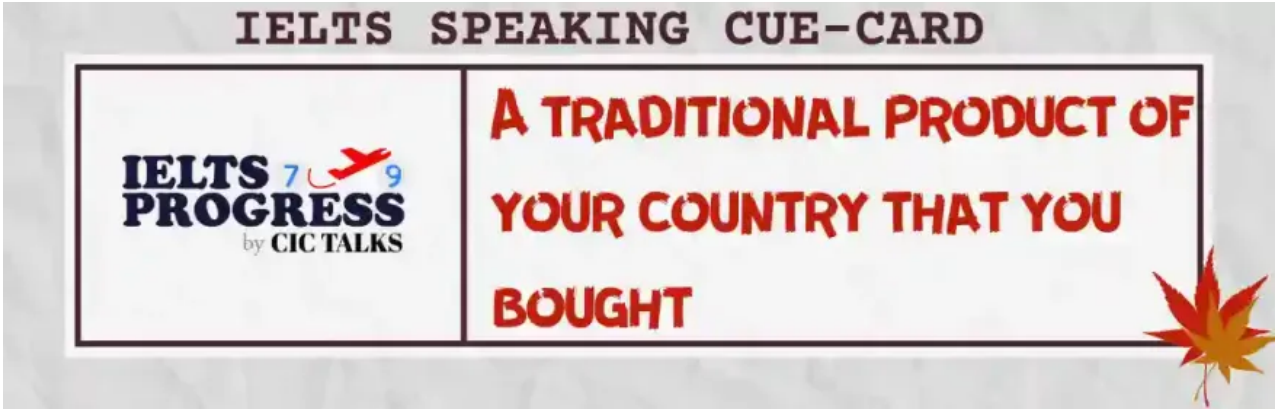

Many people are dependent upon it for their livelihood. The farmers use it for irrigation and people also do fishing in this river. In addition, the river Ganga is considered sacred and many Hindu festivals are organised on the banks of river Ganga.

In the end, I believe there's no other river or lake in my country or hometown as important as the river Ganges.

I tried it for the first time last winter. It was a lightweight pashmina scarf that I always liked to flaunt. So I tied my hair in a neat bun and secured it with the pretty traditional scarf and became the diva I always wanted to be.

But one day I read an article in New York Times on Effective Time Management. The author had very nicely explained the pros of time management and how it can bring a positive change in someone's life.

I was intrigued by the author. As he said, time is the most important commodity on Earth. We can buy gold and silver but not time. As a result, I started making a list of to-do things before going to bed and I try my best to fulfil it the next day.

On the actual day of the Diwali event, we all went to the temple to pay obeisance to the almighty and seek his bles togethersings. Thereafter, we called some friends and relatives to come home and celebrate the eve together.

Last year, it was my cousin's birthday in January. We host so many guests, that my cousins and I had to sleep on the terrace. It was quite pleasant outside and we were happy with the arrangements made by our family. After dinner, we carried our beddings upstairs and laid our beds.

It was a clear moonlit night and we could see the stars twinkling brightly. We started giving shapes to the star patterns. The luminosity of the heavenly sky at night casts its glow, shedding its light from distant space and time on every throbbing heart.

I recently received it as a gift from my younger brother. The small bamboo sticks were tied together using red ribbons in a mesmerising glass jar. I first saw this plant in my neighbourhood when I was probably 15 years old.

Bonsai bamboo plants are linked with the feng shui practice of keeping auspicious bamboo plants, which bring good luck and fortune to a family. It is one of the most adaptable plants with multiple uses. For instance, it can easily grow in poorly degraded soil.

Owing to this, it can be used to improve the texture of the soil damaged by overgrazing and poor agricultural techniques. Furthermore, it has a complex root network. This is ideal for preventing soil erosion and flooding.

Chocolates have always been my favourites, and I like to try new types of chocolates every now and then. For instance, Milk chocolates, Dark chocolates and Coconut chocolates. But today I would love to tell you about an interesting anecdote when I felt dislike for a new kind of chocolate.

As I recall, it was almost 2 years back, during the winters. My vacations had just started in December and my aunt Marie came to visit us from London. He brought along many gifts for us and also some chocolates which were exclusively available in the UK at that time.

There was one flavoured dark chocolate which I absolutely hated. From the outside, it had bright colours and looked eye-grabbing. I had never heard of this chocolate brand before and was really excited to try it.

So I thought why shouldn't I try it? As soon as I had the first bite, I felt inherently bitter about the sweet. In contrast to my imagination, the chocolate was too spicy and completely bitter.

It did not taste sweet at all!

For a moment I thought that my aunt had played a prank on me, but then she told me that this chocolate has been made organically and tastes different from the rest of the chocolates. Above all, he has so many interesting stories to tell. I have known him for the past 7 years as he moved into our neighbourhood a decade ago. I see him every day while jogging in the park. He is close to local traditions and generally likes to wear Kurta pajamas.

I believe he is a good neighbour because he shows empathy for everyone. He also helped me a lot in my studies. Moreover, he considers me his grandchild. He is a retired Maths teacher. So he had been very helpful to solve my doubts regarding the subject.

Another thing that I liked about him is that he is a self-made man. He told me how he started from scratch after the partition and worked very hard to earn two swuare meals a day. He has a daughter who lives in Canada.

Since we had tried all the major restaurants in our town, I thought of taking them to a new place. I saw a promo on the TV about a new jungle theme based restaurant that had recently opened in our city. The name of the restaurant was Big Jumanji Café.

Therefore, I quickly called the café and made a reservation for 12 people and got the early-bird deal at just 600 Rs/person. Which is a way lot cheaper!!

We reached there around 8 PM in the evening. As soon as we entered the café we were astonished/amazed by the interiors of the café. The walls were decorated with tree leaves. The tan furniture made us feel like we were having a picnic in some jungle. In the background, sweet animal sounds were playing.

After that, we ordered some food and the waiters also brought a surprise birthday cake which was custom booked by me. In the end, when the bill arrived, everyone was wondering how such great service could be this inexpensive.

The place I live is not a coastal area. It is landlocked and surrounded by some big cities. So, there are not many areas for fishing except a few ponds. However, there is a water body at about 85 kms from my hometown and has a great fishing area.

My fascination with fishing and fishing gears started from early childhood – the time of life when curiosity is at its peak and the desire to learn is the strongest. Nangal is very small town and most of the population of the town is employed with the dam and reservoir in some way or the other.

At the dam here, you will find various different species of fish. I had studied about the dam and reservoir in my geography class at school. When I was young, my uncle once took me there. He commuted to Nangal every week from our hometown. He gave me an open invitation to stay there with my friends during the holidays.

So, we went there with my uncle on Monday morning. Till about 5.30 PM we did some exploring of the town and then he joined us in the evening and showed us all the places. He took us to the reservoir, where we saw many local fishermen selling their fish.

We could see some fishing nets in the water but fishing mostly happened in the morning. There was a very beautiful river walk along the periphery of the reservoir and we walked there enjoying the cool breeze. From the next day, we spent the entire time near the reservoir, swimming, playing volleyball and even trying are hand at fishing and failing miserably.

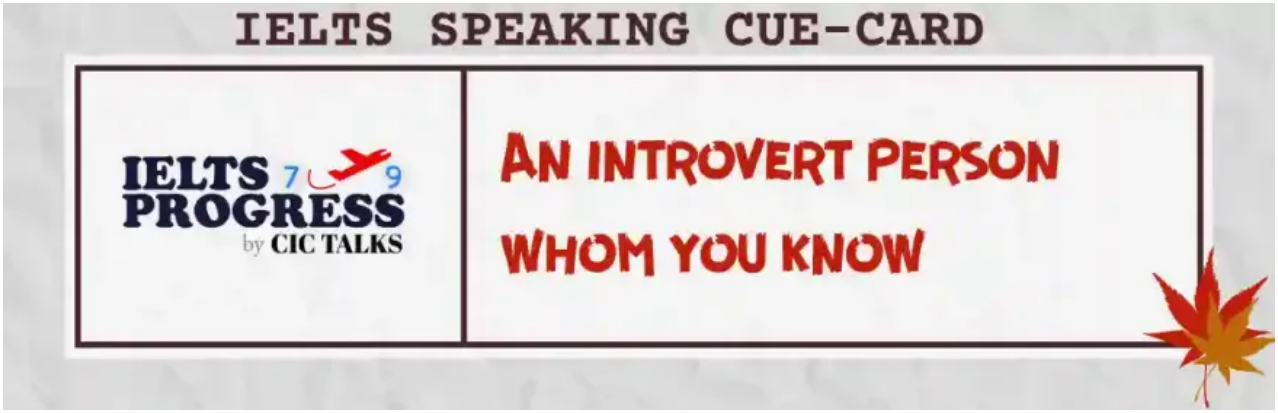

Anyway, this would definitely be the most loved memory of a fishing area that I visited once.

We have to push him to come out. But he is not boring when he does come out, we really enjoy his company. He is an optimistic human being and loves to enjoy the moment rather than whining or complaining. I have never seen him stressed or talking about his worries.

His hobbies include reading books and newspapers, playing online games like Chess and watching TV shows. Although most of his preferred activities are indoor activities, he keeps fit as he goes for a run in the morning.

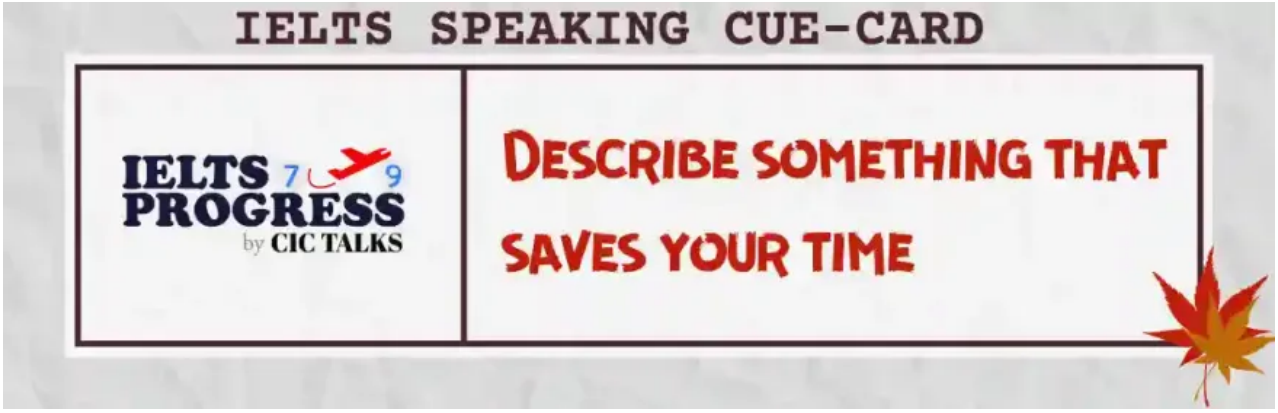

He doesn't like talking to strangers. He is confined within himself. I have seen his answers being as abrupt as just yes and no. But I believe, Introverts can be great friends as long as people push themselves to reach out and connect in the beginning.

I have realised that without having time in check, I would not be able to fulfil my personal and professional commitments. Therefore, I do a lot of things to save time but one activity that saves me a lot of time is taking a power nap whenever I feel restless.

I started doing this, two years back after I read an article about the health benefits of a power nap on a fitness blog. It saves me time as it refreshes me. After a nap, my mind feels relaxed and my body feels lighter.

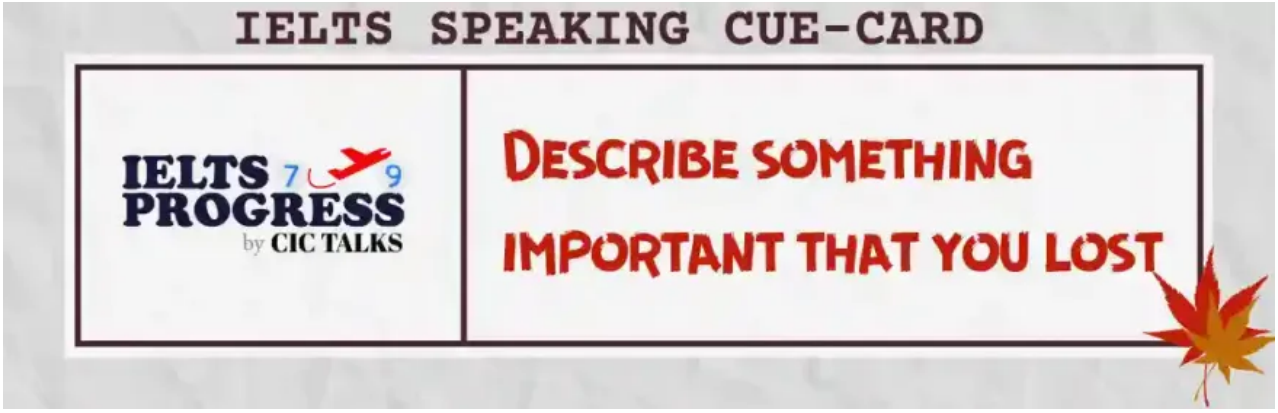

Earlier it was very hard for me to manage time. But now I just get 5-10 mins out of the schedule to take a nap so that I don't struggle with time deficiency later on. This technique has resulted in me being able to finish my work sooner.

The thing I'm talking about was a mobile phone. I got it as a gift from my elder brother on completion of my studies. I felt joyous when my brother surprised me with an iPhone. However, I lost it somewhere in transit while travelling back from Chandigarh.

There was a lot of rush, but I got a seat in the front row. I took out my phone to make a call, but after that I don't remember whether I put it back or it was dropped down. When I reached home, I realised with a sinking heart that my phone was gone forever. So I blocked the SIM card and lodged an FIR in the hope that someday I would find my dearest phone.

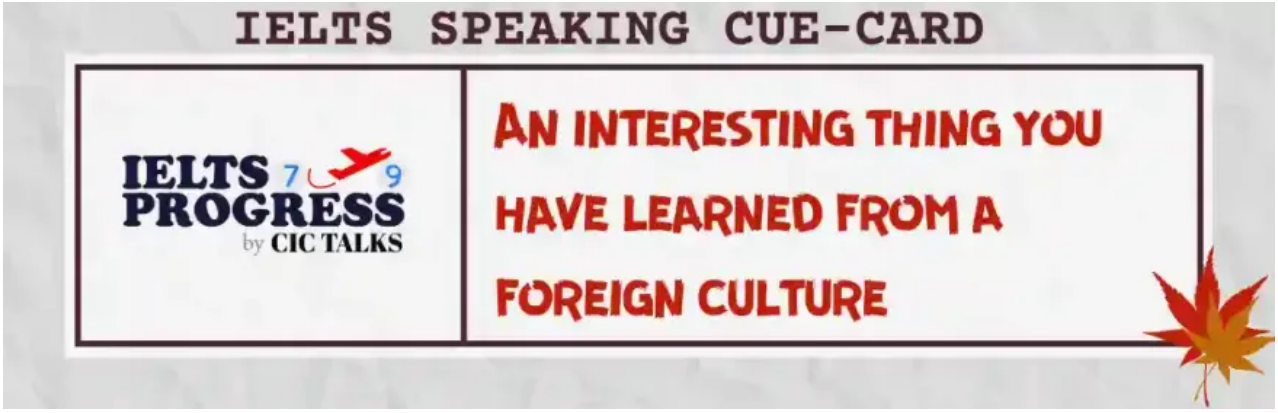

I was very possessive about it since it contained a lot of my personal photographs. I never let anybody touch it. I used it to play Mahjong and Tetris on my phone. I also stayed connected with my friends thanks to that iPhone.

Learning a new culture helps you appreciate a new country and their way of living. An interesting thing I learned from a foreign culture is the celebration of Mother's day. Growing up in my country we never had an official day to honour the contributions made by mothers into this world.

When I was in college one of my friends who was studying in London came back home during summer break. We were meeting after so long and she shared so much about her college and how the culture there was so ditinct.

One of the things she told me was Mother's Day celebration there. It is celebrated on the second Sunday in May every year to honour the mothers. It is an opportunity for children to showcase their love and thank their mothers owing to all they have done.

She lives with her aunt in England, and she told me that on Mother's Day, her cousins created cards for their mother, cooked her breakfast in bed, and helped her with chores all day. Mother's Day was also celebrated at her cousin's school. They all went out to dinner that day, and her uncle purchased her aunt a gorgeous ring.

I also wanted to do something unique for my mother, so I informed my sister about this well-known Western tradition. I am really close to my mother and have witnessed her do so much for me and my sister on a daily basis. She worked full-time, helped us with our homework, cooked our favourite recipes, planned our birthday parties, and looked after us when we were sick.

So, dedicating one day to celebrate her felt really good to me and I started celebrating Mother's day every year. In the end, I would just say that Mother's day is an interesting thing I have learned from a foreign culture.

In today's fast-paced world, finding calm areas is quite challenging. However, I'd like to discuss an area where I frequently visit and find amazing tranquillity.

The location I am talking about is Gurdwara Dukhniwaran Sahib, a Sikh temple in Patiala.

I go there every month with my family and friends. We sometimes walk to the gurdwara and other times drive by car. It's around 4 kilometres from my house. Because it is located far away from the main road, it is very calm. I always pay respect to the almighty whenever I go there.

Moreover, there is a well-kept fishpond in the gurdwara. I just sit on the pond's steps and listen to the holy chants that are always going on there. It provides me with tremendous peace and comfort. This activity refreshes my mind and makes me spiritually connected to positivity. I feel very humbled after that.

22) A new year resolution

In Speaking Part-2 Describe a resolution you made in the new year IELTS cue card 2022, you should say:

- What is the resolution?
- How will you complete it?
- How you feel about it?
- Why you made this resolution?

Model cue card answer:

People enjoy going to parties or spending time with family and friends to ring in the new year. Also, the start of a new year causes people to reflect on the future and how they may make it better than the previous year.

Making New Year's resolutions is a popular approach for people to do this. It's frequently a vow to accomplish a new goal or make a life shift.

I've made numerous New Year's resolutions in the past, only to abandon them within a short period of time. But this year, I've made a resolve that I believe is more realistic and that I should be able to keep. My New Year's resolution is to improve my health and fitness.

I've decided to perform a 10 km walk a week or jog at least thrice a week for my health and fitness. Moreover, I've opted to cut back on junk food and fully eliminate unhealthy stuff from my diet, which I believe is the most challenging element of my resolution.

Plus, I've downloaded a health tracker on my phone to help me keep track of my resolution. It's known as Stay fit. This app serves as a reminder for the run activities I need to accomplish as well as a performance tracker. With its help, I can keep track of my heart rate and jogging speed.

It also introduces me to people in my neighbourhood who are looking for fitness companions. So far, I've made connections with a few people in my society, and we go for morning strolls every day.

I made this resolution because I believe that one of the most essential aspects of our lives is our health, which is often overlooked in today's chronically busy society. They later develop a variety of ailments and are unable to enjoy life to its fullest.

It feels so good after accomplishing my fitness goals; it provides me a sense of success and relieves anxiety from my life.

Model cue card answer:

The 15th of July is my birthday. Summer breaks are generally in effect in Indian schools during this time, and most of my friends go out to see their close relatives. As a result, I spent this special day with my parents and a younger sister.

Last year, though, I wasn't expecting anything special but God has different plans. My sister surprised me with an astonishing birthday present. It was the special cake that she made exclusively for me.

She certainly had a lot of thought put into it. The cake was in the shape of a racing car; red and white Ferrari with wheels made of dark chocolate. Chocolate is one of my favourite foods. Moreover, the cake demonstrated that she cared for me much than I do.

The cake was simply stunning in every aspect. In my family, I never imagined someone could cook such a beautiful cake. So I couldn't believe my eyes when I first saw the cake. Everyone was engrossed in photographing the cake for about 15 minutes.

Even my other relatives were surprised to see such a cake made by my younger sibling.

In Speaking Part-2 Describe a bicycle/motorcycle/car trip you would like to go on IELTS cue card 2022, you should say:

- Where you would like to go?
- When you would like to go?
- Explain why would you like to go by bicycle/motorcycle/car?

Model cue card answer:

I have read a lot of stuff about bike journey to Leh & Ladakh made by people. Leh is a high-altitude city in J&K, India's northernmost state. It is largely famous as a tourist destination and for its monasteries.

My friends and I had planned to ride our motorcycles there in 2021, but we were unable to do so owing to the COVID restrictions. It's around 450 kilometres from our hometown. That's why, we chose to ride a motorcycle to the hills.

The major reason for riding a motorcycle is because it is the finest way to absorb the scenery along the way and feel the fresh air. Secondly, some of the highland routes are extremely narrow, leading to traffic congestion at times.

India is full of successful businessmen like Anil Ambani, Mukesh Ambani, Ratan Tata, Vijay Mallya, and many others to speak about. But today I'd want to talk about the head of Reliance group of companies Mr Mukesh Ambani.

He is in his late fifties and has a really attractive appearance. At an early age, he joined his family business at Reliance Industries and made fortune out of his Chemical Engineering degree. Mr Ambani is a visionary businessman. He established India's first-ever private oil refinery at Gujarat giving jobs to thousands of unemployed people.

Above all, he paved the way for India to compete on a global scale. Mr Mukesh Ambani also owns the IPL's domestic cricket club, the Mumbai Indians. He is also among one of the richest men in the world. I admire him because believes that the primary goal of businesses is to generate money and jobs.

And, through his different business ventures, he has been successful in doing so. His accomplishments have made him well-known not only in his home country but also throughout the world.
